DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on December 20, 2004 has been entered.

Remarks

Claims 1-8 are presently pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102 and 103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 3 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Horie et al. (U.S. Pat. 6,146,789).

Claims 2 and 4-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Horie et al. as applied to claims 1 and 3 above, in view of Shibana et al. (U.S. Pat. 4,772,291).

In maintaining the present ground of rejection(s), the examiner notes that the rejections have been discussed in detail in the previous Office Action. With respect to new dependent claims 5-8, the dye is considered to naturally flow to inherently have elastomeric affinity and be even dispersed as claimed in view of its physical properties such as fast curing, absent of a showing by applicant that the claimed invention distinguishes over the reference. In re Best, 195 USPQ at 433, footnote 4 (CCPA 1977) and In re Spada, 15 USPQ 2d 1655 (Fed. Cir. 1990) (Horie et al. in col. 5 line 8 et seq.)

The examiner notes applicant's amendment to independent claim 1 now reciting that the sealant is in direct contact with the metal case and sealing body. Applicant submits that as shown in Fig. 2 of Horie et al. the sealant [24] is not situated between and in direct contact with the metal case [21] and the gasket [23]. In reply, the examiner asserts that the (new) phantom line drawn below shows the sealant is, indeed, situated between the metal case [21] and gasket [23].

Art Unit: 1745

As to claim 3, applicant submits that the gasket [23] (equivalent with the claimed sealing body or sealing plate) is made of a synthetic resin, therefore there is no equivalent in Horie et al. to the claimed metal sealing plate. The examiner notes that the claims do not require a metal sealing plate. Notwithstanding, the examiner maintains that Horie et al. teaches the sealant [24] in direct contact with the gasket or sealing body [23], as shown by the arrow [1] below, while also being in contact with the metal case [21], as shown by arrow [2] below.

Note that the sealant, as required by the claim, is still between the gasket and metal case, even if the direct contact to the gasket and metal case is arguably on one side.

Arguments that the sealant in Horie et al. does not prevent electrolyte creep, inter alia, have been fully considered but are not persuasive as they are outside the scope of the present claims.

With respect to the purported advantages and unexpected results of phthalocyanine over cyanine, or alleged differences in physical properties, applicant is reminded that attorney arguments are not evidence and cannot take place of evidence in the record; an assertion of, e.g. excellent organic solvent resistance, alkali resistance, acid resistance, etc. for pthalocyanine is just attorney argument and not the kind of factual evidence that is required to rebut a prima facie case of obviousness.
